

YOU ARE INVITED TO THE
98TH ANNUAL MEETING

IT'S A SMALL, SMALL WORLD

The Social Sciences encapsulate the relationships past, present, and future, which bind individuals and societies together. It is through the shared examination of various subjects across the disciplines that we enhance our understanding of the world. Twenty-first century forces of change, technology, and globalization have stimulated increased intercultural and interdisciplinary perspectives on the human condition. The theme for the 2018 meeting is “It’s a Small, Small World”, reflecting the ever-increasing interconnectedness of people, systems and academic disciplines.
